JAMES ROSS QUATTLEBAUM

Sept. 8, 1930 ❖ Feb. 22, 2025

My Dad resided at Hacienda Carmel in Carmel Valley and passed away on Feb. 22nd. He did not want a memorial service, so I am writing this in remembrance.

Dad was a fantastic father and grandfather. Growing up on the Monterey Peninsula, he always took an active interest in my activities and hobbies. When I became a Boy Scout, he became an Adult Scout Volunteer. When I showed an interest in rocks and minerals, Dad and I took many rockhounding trips together, culminating in his becoming president of the Carmel Valley Gem & Mineral Society. As a grandfather, he followed his grandson's pursuits closely and supported him in his endeavors.

Dad came to California by way of Arkansas. He was a big fan of the Razorbacks and, every year for his birthday, I labored to find a unique Arkansas product to gift him with. While those gifts now come to an end, I will think of my Dad every time I see a "hawg." Actually, I will think of him often regardless.
